

WAR CLOUDS MADE TO ORDER

Rep. Bartholdt Says Have Tendency to Rise in U. S. When Appropriations Come Up.

SAID FOR JAPANESE' BENEFIT.

Ambassador Henrich von Bernstorff Gives German View of Arbitration to Peace Congress.

Chicago, May 5.—"War clouds in the United States have a propensity for darkening the horizon just before the matter of army and navy appropriations come up. This was shown by the recent Japanese trouble in California."

Congressman Bartholdt made this statement tonight in an address at a banquet that closed the second National Peace Congress here. He made this statement for the benefit of J. C. Matsumura, Japanese consul at Chicago, who sat near him.

Mr. Bartholdt smilingly declared the western agitation had resulted in no impairment of the good relations between the United States and Japan. The only fireworks of the congress were let off at the forenoon session. Judge E. O. Brown read the resolutions as prepared by a committee. He moved their adoption, and was seconded by W. H. Galvani, representing the governor of Oregon. Mr. Galvani, who escaped as a political prisoner from a Russian prison 25 years ago, and who, he said, has since been absolutely prevented by the Russian police from communicating with his relatives in the old country, spoke with much feeling.

"I have traveled 3,000 miles to be here," he said, "but I would travel three times that distance for the privilege."

A resolution deprecating the use of alluring posters by the government in securing recruits for the army and navy was tabled. This closed the business session, and the delivery of addresses followed.

RESOLUTIONS.
That public war is "out of date and a relic of barbarism unworthy of our time" is the initial declaration of the resolutions adopted by the congress this morning.

"The nations of the old world, by joint agreement, by a league of peace among themselves, ought to make its recurrence hereafter impossible."

"The resolutions call attention to the fact that the two The Hague conferences have created a permanent court of arbitration, to which all the nations are now parties, and continue:

"Resolved, That no dispute between nations, except such as may involve the national life and independence, should be reserved from arbitration, and that a general treaty of obligatory arbitration should be concluded at the earliest possible date. Pending such a treaty, we urge upon our government and the other leading powers such broadening in the scope of their arbitration treaties as shall provide, after the example of the Danish-Netherlands treaty, for the reference to The Hague court of all differences whatever not settled otherwise by peaceful means."

"Resolved, That the rivalry in armaments, both on land and sea, which imposes such exhausting burdens of taxation on the people, and is the fruitful source of suspicion, bitter feeling and war with arms, is wholly unworthy of enlightened modern nations."

tions, is a lamentable failure as a basis of enduring peace, and ought to be arrested by a demand of the powers without delay."

The resolutions express high appreciation of the action of the United States government in concluding 22 arbitration treaties, and urge the president and Congress to endeavor to secure an agreement for a "speedy arrest of the ruinous competition in armaments now prevailing."

The resolutions close with an appeal to churches, schools and press, workmen and commercial organizations for active support for the cause. GERMAN AMBASSADOR'S SPEECH.
The German ambassador, Count Johann Henrich von Bernstorff, in his address before the peace conference today, said:

"I beg leave to express an opinion on these two subjects from the German point of view. Our government and people heartily sympathize with the idea of submitting such questions to arbitration which do not involve national honor and vital national interests. If my government were unwilling to enter into a general treaty of obligatory arbitration they on the other hand have always declared themselves willing to conclude treaties of arbitration with other governments in pairs. The German secretary of state for foreign affairs only a few weeks ago gave expression of this view before the German parliament. Baron Schoen-said: "The imperial government is by no means, opposed to conclude arbitration treaties with other governments in pairs. We have concluded such a treaty with Great Britain. We had also concluded one with the United States of America. It was not our fault that this treaty did not take effect, but we hope that the difficulties which stood in the way may be overcome. In our opinion, however, a general arbitration treaty is by no means always necessary for the purpose of settling controversies which might lead to conflicts. The German foreign office has for many years been in the habit of proposing arbitration treaties of controversies between the German and foreign governments. It has thus been possible to settle several disagreeable questions at issue before they developed into conflicts. We shall in future also proceed in the same way."

"Moreover in the course of last winter my government agreed with France to submit the Casablanca question to arbitration, a question which came very near involving national honor, as a German consular official had been attacked by foreign troops. You will all agree that no government could well do more for the cause of arbitration."

"As to the question of the limitation of armaments you all know that the German government could not see their way to take any steps in this matter. 'Incidentally I may mention that we will in 1912 have 19 Dreadnoughts and 21 Torpedoes and not 17 or 25 Dreadnoughts as was wrongly stated.'"

"In Napoleon's day the German nation learned the lesson that it is the right and duty of every man to protect his home and his country to the last drop of blood that remains in his body and that he must be ready to give his life for something greater than himself, something beyond his selfish interests. Every one of you would do the same today; you would all draw the sword for the liberty and freedom of your country."

"Such was the birthday of the present German army or to use the more correct expression of the German nation in arms. And now what have been the results of this institution? Since that day the German nation has again set its foot on German soil and a prosperity is reigning in all classes of the German people, which would have seemed incredible to our forefathers because they were always subject to the encroachments of their powerful neighbors."

"Every nation follows more or less distinctive traditions of thought. I all declare that they are the most peaceful nation of the world, but they only believe this of themselves and not of others because they are often ignorant of the disposition, purpose and qualities of other people. Therefore one must judge nations like individuals, by their acts and not according to prejudices."

"Only twice during the last 40 years did our soldiers have to fight. On one occasion they fought shoulder to shoulder with the troops of the United States for the cause of civilization in China. This expedition cannot be called a war, neither can one use this expression when we speak of the rebellion in South West Africa, which had to be subdued. Moreover, in both cases which I mention the national army was not sent to war. Our troops in China and Africa were composed of volunteers. It was not even possible to call them soldiers, but they were officers and soldiers who desired to join the flag."

"I often hear our emperor spoken of in this country as a war lord. You must, however, not forget that although he has reigned for 21 years at the head of the strongest army in the world, he never made a war. Our armaments are intended to preserve peace for our own people and of course to be able to prevent war from breaking out in other parts of the world, where we have interests to protect."

WARSHIPS TO PROTECT JAPANESE SEALERS

Victoria, B. C., May 5.—Japanese warships are to be sent to Bering sea to protect the sealers from Yokohama, Tokyo and other ports across the Pacific which flock to Bering sea in growing numbers each year. This is the news from an authoritative source at Tokyo. A letter received here says:

"In view of the fact that Japanese sealers are seized every year in and about the Bering sea on charges of poaching, the Japanese government is considering proposals to send warships there during the sealing season for the protection of the sealers. The proposal is somewhat dangerous proceeding, likely to involve the risk of international trouble, and many prominent officials are of this opinion. The request for the sending of Japanese warships is being made by the sealing interests."

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

Course in It Will be Added to University of California Curriculum.

Berkeley, Cal., May 6.—Started by the announcement during the past week of 10 engagements among the students of the University of California, the faculty of that institution has decided to add a course in household economy to the curriculum of the coming summer session. Several years ago there was an epidemic of engagements and secret marriages among the students of the university and so serious was the matter considered that President Wheeler made a special address to the co-eds advising them against encouraging marriage until the men students had become wage-earners. This talk put an end to the secret marriages, but the engagements have gone on ever since until the record of this week was made. The announcements have revived the question of the desirability of co-education and the discussion among the faculty and students has already become animated.
